Supplies & Costs

Required supplies: Pay office $40 art fee, sketchbook, and pencil. As an aspired artist, it is encouraged to start buying your own art supplies, but not required. The cost to submit work for review is approximately $90.

Class Overview

- AP Studio Art sets a national standard in the visual arts that contributes a significant role to the academic environment, while allowing students to earn college credit and/or advanced placement while in high school. AP courses address quality of student work and the student's concentration on a particular interest or visual problem
- College AP credit is not earned by taking the class. That will come as a result of passing a test which comes in May. The test consists of a review of the students work by a panel of judges at Princeton University who will look at approximately 30 pieces of the students work. Scores range from 1-6. A score of 3 or better constitutes a passing grade which results in 12 hours of college credit. This is worth $600-$2000 (depending on the university). The cost to submit work for review is approximately $90.
- All AP art students will be expected to complete a portfolio for submission. Only artwork that has been completed while in high school will be accepted for portfolio submission.
- Portfolio requirement for AP Studio Art (earning college credit):
 - 12 Breadth Art Works: experience in the formal, technical, and expressive means of the artist.
 - 12 Concentration Art works: 12 unified art pieces, but each art piece is different.
 - 5 actual works of quality: Matte 5 of your best art pieces to send
 - Written commentary: artist statement
 - Portfolios are scored from a one to a six; three and above is a passing score. Always shoot for a 6!
